

Indiana State University

ENG 105 Section 004

Freshman Writing II

Catalog Course Description

Writing documented papers synthesizing information from several different sources, with emphasis on reading and writing as processes of discovery in thinking critically.

Faculty Information

Name: Dr. Harold Bosstick

Email: Harold.Bosstick@indstate.edu

Department: Department Of English

Office Hours: 1 to 3 p.m. MW in person, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday on Teams

Course Learning Objectives

- LO1 — Students produce writing that meets conventional expectations for a specific discipline and/or writing task. Student writing shows evidence of careful proofreading and attention to mechanics.
- LO2 — Students demonstrate Rhetorical Knowledge to write effectively for different contexts, audiences, and purposes.
- LO3 — Students can evaluate, integrate, synthesize, and cite primary and secondary sources accurately and ethically.
- LO4 — Students apply course concepts and terminology to reflect critically on their own composing practices and/or rhetorical decisions.

Required Textbooks and Materials

None, digital readings provided

Graded Elements of the Course

Research Project, which includes an annotated bibliography, research paper, and final portfolio